

Affiliate Marketing Demystified: A Beginner's Guide to Passive Income | 7hubent Tech

Picture this: It's a hot Saturday afternoon in Kano, and you're chilling under the mango tree, sipping zobo while scrolling through WhatsApp. Then you spot it—an ad promoting a small, homegrown business that suddenly becomes the talk of the town. You wonder, "How do people make money just by sharing links?" My dear, that is the beauty of affiliate marketing! Let me hold your hand as we demystify this "passive income" buzzword and reveal how platforms like 7hubent Tech can help you earn while sipping your zobo.

What Is Affiliate Marketing?

Affiliate marketing is simply recommending products or services to others. When they buy through your special link, you get paid a commission. Think of it as that time you told your neighbor Aisha about the akara joint near Sabon Gari market, and the seller gave you free akara for bringing her more customers. Affiliate marketing works the same way but on a larger and more digital scale.

And here's the juicy part: You don't need a shop, capital, or even experience to start. All you need is an audience and a platform like 7hubent Tech to advertise your links for free.

How Does It Work?

1. Sign up for an Affiliate Program:
Choose brands or products you believe in.

Popular options include Amazon, Jumia, and Flutterwave.

2. Get Your Unique Affiliate Link: This is your “ID card” to track sales.

3. Promote the Link: Share it everywhere—on WhatsApp status, Facebook, Instagram, or even through 7hubent Tech's free advertising WhatsApp groups.

4. Earn Commission: Every time someone buys through your link, you earn a percentage of the sale.

Why Is Affiliate Marketing Perfect for Nigerians?

With Nigeria's economic palava, who wouldn't want extra cash? Affiliate marketing is flexible, risk-free, and requires no upfront investment. Whether you're a university student in UNILAG, a tailor in Aba, or a hustler in Kano, affiliate marketing fits into your lifestyle.
